1. Rationale and ethos

It is the policy of School Governors and a statutory requirement that all students will follow a programme of relationships and sex education. The governors feel that the school must help and support young people to learn about the challenges of growing up. Giving them the facts unambiguously and the skills, in a relaxed and secure environment in which they can confidently ask questions and be assured of answers. This is to aid making healthy decisions about their lives. Relationships and Sex Education is an integral part of the students' PSHE programme but calls for sensitive teaching as it is a sensitive issue with strong moral, legal, religious and cultural considerations. This involves acknowledging that relationships and sex education should not only give information and increase understanding, but that it should promote sensible, healthy behaviour, combat abuse and cultivate the ability to make informed decisions and develop skills for future parents and carers.

We believe the work we do on relationships and sex education allows young people to examine their own and others attitudes and make informed decisions about their lives. It enables young people to mature, build up their confidence and self-esteem and understand the reasons for making decisions around their sexual activity and seek help, support and guidance when needed.

Our aim is to have a programme of Relationships and Sex Education which:

Reinforces the school aims by promoting the spiritual, moral, cultural, social, mental and physical development and wellbeing of the students at PHSG.
Discusses matters within the context of loving, caring and healthy relationships, while being sensitive to the fact that some children in our care are from a variety of home backgrounds and family structures.
Educates for responsible parenthood and adolescence in such a way that encourages all pupils to have due regard for the value of a stable family and secure home environment.
Meets the needs of all individuals, and includes education, awareness and tolerance of the protected characteristics described by the Equality Act 2010.
Involves parents and all other stakeholders in relationships and sex education issues, whilst complementing and supporting the role of parents who are key figures in helping children with physical and emotional aspects of growing up.
Promotes health and hygiene.
Creates an environment in school within which trust and confidence are assured.
Has suitable material and resources appropriate to the age, maturity and background of pupils to support staff in their teaching

2. Objectives

We will deliver a programme of Relationships and Sex Education which will:

- Provide information which will help individuals to develop a moral framework from which to make rational, mature and informed decisions.
- Provide knowledge and understanding of the physical aspects of sexual behaviour and human reproduction in an objective and balanced and sensitive manner.
- Help pupils to understand their own emotional development.
- Allow students to learn about their bodies and sexuality.
- Provide information which will enable students to understand and foster tolerance of the protected characteristics as defined by the Equality Act 2010
- Use resources and language which usualises LGBT+ individuals and relationships
- Help young people promote loving, caring and healthy relationships and the idea of mutual responsibility within these relationships.
- Ensure that young people understand the implications and responsibilities of parenthood and the value of family life.
- Allowing students to learn a variety of skills to aid them in managing themselves and a healthy relationship.

5. Withdrawal from RSE

Parents have the right to request that their child be withdrawn from some or all of sex education delivered as part of statutory RSE but not from relationships education. This is done by letter to the Headteacher. Parents are informed of this procedure in the annual RSE letter which is sent out each September.

Before granting any such request, the Headteacher should discuss with parents the benefits of receiving this important education and any detrimental effects that withdrawal might have on the child. This could include any social and emotional effects of being excluded, as well as the likelihood of the child hearing their peers' version of what was said in the classes, rather than what was directly said by the teacher. Once those discussions have taken place, except in exceptional circumstances, the school should respect the parents' request to withdraw the child, up to and until three terms before the child turns 16. After that point, if the child wishes to receive sex education rather than be withdrawn, the school will make arrangements to provide the child with sex education during one of those terms.

6. Curriculum design and content

The programme is co-ordinated by the Head of PSHE & Citizenship in conjunction with the Headteacher and link SLT. The curriculum entitlement for Relationship and Sex Education is met through the PSHE programme, the National Curriculum Science programme and the Religious Education programme which run concurrently.

The content is informed by the needs of students, local data and is organised according to the outcomes of Relationships Education, Relationships and Sex Education and Health Education (2019) which are-

	Families
	Respectful relationships, including friendships
	Online and media
	Being safe
	Intimate and sexual relationships, including sexual health

7. Safe and Effective practice

To ensure high quality teaching and learning; RSE is quality assured by HOD of PSHE and Citizenship and the link member of SLT. Regular CPD is undertaken to make sure staff are working with up to date knowledge and practice and external agencies are regularly consulted to aid good practice. The school uses the PSHE association as a benchmark for good practice.

To ensure safe and effective practice for students and staff, ground rules are to be used where appropriate. They should be used during discussions that may include sensitive topics such as drug education, mental health and RSE. They are used to give students space, respect and confidence to contribute and feel safe when listening to comments from others. Ideally, they should be created and led by the students.

The language used in RSE is to be open, inclusive and free from discrimination.

- ☐ E.g. partner instead of boyfriend, a relationship is non-gender or non-sexuality specific.
- ☐ Selective use of the word 'normal', as it means different things to different people.

Language that skills students up to assess risk when making decisions (How is a student going to decide what to do if a situation presents its self?) rather than catastrophe style language.

8. Safeguarding

Teachers are aware that RSE can bring about an understanding of what is and what is not appropriate in a relationship, can lead to a disclosure of a child protection issue. Teachers will consult with the DSL, and in their absence, a deputy DSL and log any concerns as per the schools safeguarding procedure.

Visitors/external agencies which support the delivery of RSE will be required to sign in and the safeguarding procedures will be explained. The protocol for inviting visitors into lessons is for them to be signed in and chaperoned by a member of PHSG staff. Where there are any safeguarding issues, the visitor should report these to the member of staff and jointly work through the safeguarding process.

Students who are vulnerable or at risk are consulted with about the topics, content, resources and possible scenarios in lessons, students are given the option to withdraw and the teacher will set alternative work and setting. Where necessary the teacher will liaise with parents or carers to ensure content is not missed.

9. Engaging stakeholders

Parents will be informed about the policy through the yearly RSE information letter. The policy will be available to parents through the school website. We are committed to working with parents and carers by consulting with them on policy review and when any significant changes need to be made. We work with parents to ensure that they are fully aware of what is being taught and provide additional resources and support when requested. As part of our whole school approach to RSE, Parent Information sessions and opportunities for parents to view the materials and resources used will be offered. We will notify parents when Relationships and Sex education will be taught, by the yearly RSE information letter.

10. Monitoring, assessment, reporting and evaluation.

The effectiveness of the RSE programme is reviewed through PSHE quality assurance. Students will have opportunities to review and reflect on their learning during lessons and working groups and feedback to the HOD of PSHE and Citizenship. Student voice is also used to allow students to contribute to the planning and organisation of their RSE curriculum.

RSE is assessed through the PSHE department assessment system using the reflection tool to reflect on knowledge and skills. The self-assessment informs teacher assessment which is reported on at the appropriate data entry point.

11. RSE policy review date

This policy will be reviewed in February 2024. It will be reviewed by the HOD of PSHE and Citizenship in conjunction with the headteacher and link governor. This will ensure quality assurance, statutory compliance and up to date planning.
