Dear Parents and Carers

Year 13 Mocks, Revision and Study Leave

Study Leave

Study leave will be from week commencing 3rd January 2022 until 14th January 2022. If a student has an examination timetabled outside the normal study leave arrangements (w/c 17th January) then the following applies: -

Afternoon Examination – additional study leave granted for the morning of the examination;

Morning Examination – no additional study leave granted.

Please communicate with teachers to collect work missed if you miss any timetabled morning lessons as a result of this additional study leave.

We appreciate that it is hard to have mock exams after Christmas but doing them in January does give us time to work with the students on improving their grades during the Spring term. Students should know that all these skills are vital to gaining higher grades:

- practising past questions: applying their knowledge to the precise wording and requirements of the paper will improve their marks.
- showing off their knowledge: revising and using lots of detail; being precise and specific with examples and in their workings and explanations
- spending time explaining and analysing: developing direct links to the keywords in the question

Please also remind them to break their revision into manageable chunks, with frequent breaks. Sitting for hours in their room does not necessarily lead to effective revision. Exercise, fresh air, healthy food and lots of sleep are crucial, as is having a good time at Christmas. During the year 13 tutorial programme this year we have covered scheduling and prioritising and these resources are available via their TEAMs account.

Most importantly of all, please help your son or daughter keep everything in perspective. Remind them that they should do their best but if, at the end of the day, it doesn't work out as they dream, there are always other pathways which will still lead them to a successful and happy life, just via an alternative route. And, there are still almost six months to go, so they have time to make an impact on their final grade.

Lessons will be running up to and including Thursday 16th December. Sixth formers will not be expected in school on Friday 17th December.

I hope you and your family have an enjoyable build up to Christmas, and that the holidays go well, despite the revision they will have to fit in.

Yours faithfully

Mr A Jenkins
